

Ms. Leanne Jones, Africa Science Research and Innovation Team Leader, British High Commission, Pretoria, South Africa. Leanne has been working at the intersection of international development and research and innovation at the UK's Foreign, Commonwealth and Development Office (FCDO) (and its predecessor, the Department for International Development (DFID) for over 10 years. Having received a Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Economics at the Australian National University, Leanne relocated to London where she spent 10 years designing and managing innovative climate policies and programmes in different parts of the UK

Government and in international consultancies. In 2014 while working at DFID, Leanne completed a Masters Degree in Innovation and Sustainability for International Development at Sussex University. Since October 2019, Leanne has been based in Lagos, leading a new team in the British Deputy High Commission to boost partnership with West African countries on science, technology and innovation for the prosperity of all. In August 2023, Leanne took up the position of Team Lead of the FCDO's Southern Africa Research and Innovation Hub (SARIH) based in Pretoria, South Africa.